Princess To Preside At Festival

Sylvia Peebles, 1969 Tournament of Roses princess, will preside over an Afro-American Festival for elementary school children to be given Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at the Pasadena Public library, 285 E. Walnut St.

Another notable who will join the children from four Pasadena schools Lorenz Graham, one of the most prominent Negro authors of children's books in the Los Angeles area. Among his works are "I Momolu," "South Town," "North Town," and "Whose Town," which will be published in the spring by the Follet Co.

The program will open with a play dramatizing the life of Harriet Tubman, the famed black abolitionist who escaped from slavery and later helped free more than 300 other slaves through her work with the Underground Railroad.

Enacted by Helen Kraft's fifth grade class of the James Madison Elementary School, the play was taken from the book "Harriet and the Promised Land," written and illustrated by Jacob Lawrence, the well-known black artist whose paintings hang in New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, Museum of Modern Art, the Whitney Museum, and other major museums around the country.

Mrs. Nancy Parker's fifth grade class at the San Rafael Elementary School and Mrs. Susan Friedman's fifth and sixth grade class at Garfield, have made African masks to help dramatize the African folktale "Why the Sun and the Moon Live in the Sky." The tale is published in book form by E. Dayrell.

Closing the program will be Mrs. Rose Simmons' sixth grade class at Lincoln Elementary School which will give a blessing and offer the traditional libation of the Ga Tribe of Ghana.

All elementary school children are welcome.

Branch Library Slates Book Week Activities

National Children's Book Week will be celebrated in the Lamanda Park Branch of the Pasadena Public Library, 140 S. Santa Anita Ave., Friday at 7:30 p.m. with a program for the entire family.

Graham Booth, illustrator of several books for children will demonstrate his methods of illustrating while he tells the children and parents an original story.

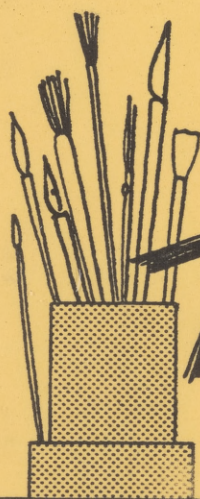

The adults will then move on to the meeting room where Booth and Marjorie Thayer, children's editor of Golden Gate Press, will discuss the art of making books. Booth will show and discuss different types of illustrating, and Miss Thayer will explain the many problems of editing.

During this time, Anita Gregory, children's librarian at the Lamanda Park Branch Library, will present the continued program for the children. There will be folk songs, poetry reading and the telling of a Japanese folk tale by Jeanette Fujita, children's librarian from the central library.

'Winnie the Pooh'

PASADENA—The Messiah Players will present "Winnie the Pooh" Saturday, Nov. 16, at 10:30 a.m. at Central Library to open Children's Book Week observance. The California Library Assn.'s collection of illustrations of outstanding children's books will be on display throughout the month.

Outstanding Books

Also on display in the main hall of the library will be the outstanding books of the year 1968, published especially for children. A printed list of recommended "books to own" will accompany this display and will be available for people interested in purchasing books for children.

A second program to close the Book Week celebration will take place Friday Nov. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Lamanda Park Branch Library, 140 S. Santa Anita Ave.

Illustrator Display

Under the title, "The Artist and His Editor," illustrator Graham Booth will display his work, and illustrate a spontaneous story for the children.

Marjorie Thayer, editor of Golden Gate Press, a Los Angeles publisher of children's books, and Booth will explain and demonstrate the technique and work which goes into making beautiful books for children.

Play Set to Observe Children's Book Week

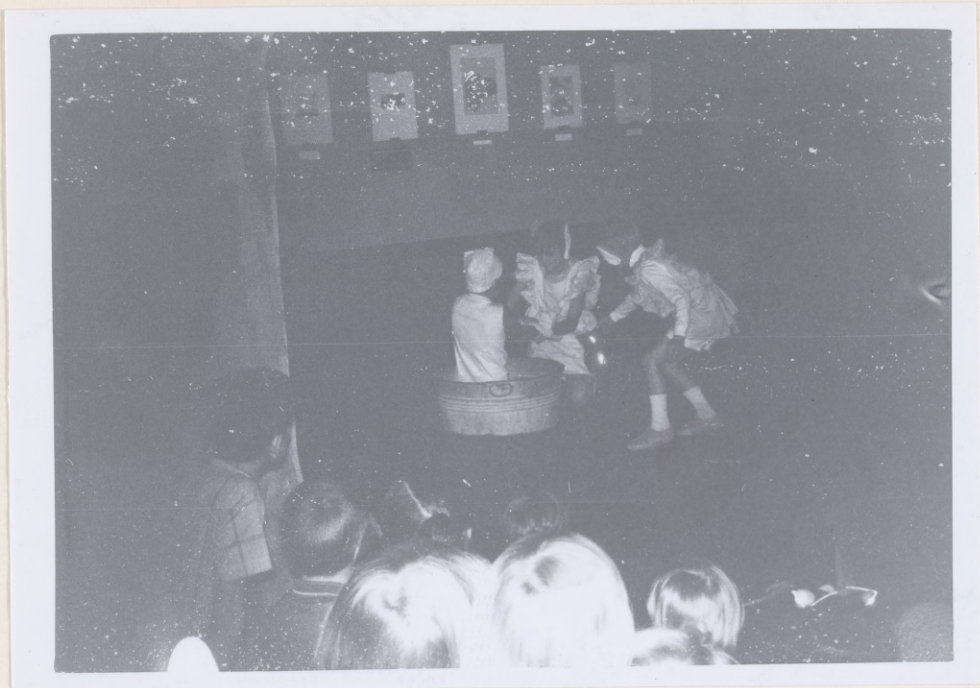

Children's Book Week will be celebrated at the Pasadena Public Library during the month of November, with a number of events planned for the observance.

The play "Winnie the Pooh," will be presented Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in the library lecture hall by the Messiah Players of Messiah Lutheran Church.

Pasadena Star

On display in the Lecture Hall during the month will be original illustrations from outstanding children's books by well-known and popular illustrators. The collection is owned by the children's division of the California Library Association and is housed at the association's headquarters in Berkeley. It was begun as a memorial to Gladys English, a dedicated children's librarian of the Los Angeles Public Library.

Martha Tolles, author of "Too Many Boys," will be the guest of the Hill Avenue Branch Library and the Lamanda Park Branch Library. It was at the Hill Avenue branch that she wrote most of her book.

Three children, Matthew, Bill and Mary Ann Brandstetter, patrons of the Hill Avenue Branch Library have made puppets in the library this summer under the guidance of Mrs. Betty Savage, children's librarian. They will be presenting the play, "The Lollipop Princess" by Eleanor Estes, to the younger children at Hill Avenue Branch Library and the Lamanda Park Branch Library for their awards program.

Eleanor Cameron, author of nine books of mystery, science fiction and fantasy for children, has been invited to present the certificates to the children of the Santa Catalina Branch Library. The readers at this branch library come in such great numbers their program is to be held in the Longfellow School auditorium.

Shirley Arora, author of "The Left-Handed Chank" and "What Then, Ramon?," and her son, will be present for the Allendale branch awards program, as speaker and as recipient of a Reading Club certificate.

The staff of the Children's Room of the Central Library has invited Frank Bonham, popular author of 10 books, to meet the older boys and girls in the lecture hall of that library. At the same time, Graham Booth, illustrator, will entertain the younger children in the story room by illustrating an original story which the children will create for him at that time.

The Boys' and Girls' Division of the library has just recently acquired an original illustration from "Time For Flowers," painted by Booth. It will be hung in the story room in time for this program.

Parents and children who are interested in the exact date and time of these programs may call their local branch library.

8 Children's Authors to Participate

Awards Set for Summer Reading

Children of Pasadena, who have read the required number of books during their summer vacation in either the "Train" or "Time" Reading for Fun clubs at the central library or any of the eight branch libraries, will receive invitations to a Reading Club awards program at one of Pasadena's libraries this month. Each library has invited a author or illustrator of children's books to meet the children, talk to them, and present the Reading Club certificates.

Never before have so many authors been invited to Pasadena to meet so many children. More than 1600 children will be participating in these award programs with eight of Southern California's authors.

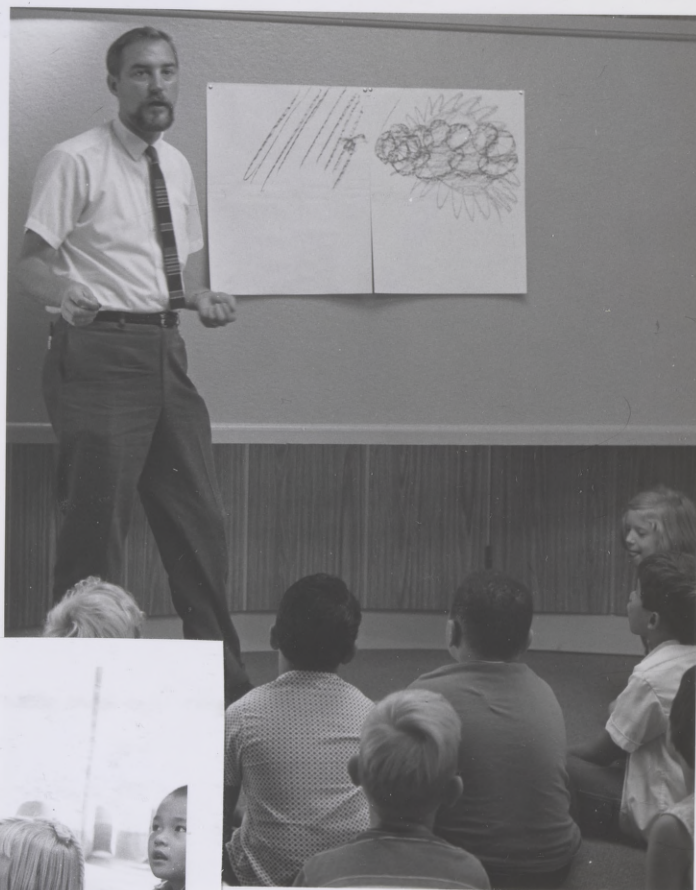

Patty Zeitlin, author of "Castle in My City," will be at the La Pintoresca Branch Library to sing songs with the children from her song book. She has been active in several projects in Watts, and has arranged to have her book illustrated by the children of Watts.

Myra Livingston, author of 11 books of poetry for children, will be present at the awards programs at the Linda Vista Branch Library and the San Rafael Library. She will read some of her own poems and poems from many well-known poets. Naturalist Norman Wakeman, professor at Pasadena City College and author, will talk with the older children of Hastings Branch Library and San Rafael Branch Library.

'Reading Clubs' Invite Children

Children of Pasadena are invited to participate this summer in the "Reading Clubs," traditional reading for fun, as children have for many years in Pasadena. They are invited to story hours and film programs in the Central Library and all the branch libraries.

Children also will be invited to story times in their own front yards, once a week, all summer long, in five areas of the city where five children's librarians will go with bags of books, reading and telling stories to children who wish to listen, under the trees and on the lawns.

A "Trading Post" on wheels will be going into the Westside area of Pasadena three times a week, with paperback books for children and adults. People may borrow the books for one week, and trade them in for different books the next week.

Children's librarians in Pasadena want children to know that reading is fun and to know the thrilling experience of owning a book. Last summer over 1,500 children received Reading Club awards in Pasadena.

'What Russian Children Read'

Soviet Books Exhibited

"What Russian Children Read," an exhibit of books and magazines for children published in the Soviet Union in the last half century, is on display at the Pasadena central library through May.

The literary texts of the materials in the exhibit were written over the past 140 years, but each work is currently in print in the USSR, and the selection thus offers substantial sampling of what today's Russian child reads.

The major portion of the exhibit consists of materials acquired, mainly in the Soviet Union, by Mrs. Miriam Morton for the preparation of her anthology, "A Harvest of Russian Children's Literature," (University of California Press, 1967), the first comprehensive anthology of such literature in English. It has been named a Notable Book, 1968, by a committee of the American Library Association.

The Soviets have taken great pride in their literature for children.

Many of the greatest and most widely celebrated authors have written for the young or have had their works adopted for children. Represented are Ivan Turgenev, Leo Tolstoy, Anton Chekhov, Aleksander Blok, Maxim Gorky, Mikhail Sholokhov, Kornei Chukovsky, Sergei Mikhalkov and Leo Kassil.

The boys' and girls' division of the library has arranged a display collection of books per-

from Garfield School -

Cinco de Mayo Celebration Set for Pasadena Saturday

Cinco de Mayo, a day set aside for honoring the close friendly relations between Mexico and the United States, will be observed in a program of songs, dances and stories at the Pasadena Public Library at 2 p.m. Saturday. Both young people and their parents are invited.

This will be the second ethnic group celebration in the library's girls and boys department and aims to give youths a cultural identity to encourage them and their parents to use and enjoy their public library.

Opening the program will be the Andrade family of Cottage Place, Pasadena, members of the Pasadena YWCA, who will sing Mexican songs. Others taking part in the program will be children of Garfield School who will sing songs of Mexico.

El Feliz Leon (The Happy Lion), a famous Mexican story, will be told in Spanish by Mrs. Ellen Burns, who lived most of her life in Chile. Mexican folk tales will be told by Mark Taylor, an author and professor of children's literature at USC. Mrs. Patty Zeitlin, also an author, will assist Taylor by singing and teaching the assembled a song in Spanish.

There will be time for autographing books by the authors. The breaking of a pinata in the patio of the library will climax the Cinco de Mayo celebration.

Children's Book Writers To Appear at Library

Children of Pasadena and their parents are invited to meet three authors Saturday at the Pasadena Public Library at 10:30 a.m. It will be the first event held in the building's new west wing.

The authors are Shirley Arora, who wrote "What Now, Raman" and "The Left-handed Chank," Shirley Sargent, who wrote "Stop the Typewriters" and "Treasure at Flying Spur," and Martha Tolles, who wrote "Too Many Boys."

The new west wing is designed especially for story hours and book discussion groups for children.

"These three authors are happy to meet boys and girls at the library and to tell them about writing their books," said Mrs. Betty Ryder, supervisor of work with children of the Pasadena Public Library.

Mrs. Arora has lived part of her life in India, and it is this country in which her stories are laid. Mrs. Sargent lived in Pasadena as a child but now lives in Yosemite, around which her more recent books, "Ranger in Skirts" and "Yosemite Tomboy," are written. Mrs. Tolles resides in San Marino and has written short stories for Jack & Jill, Highlights for Children and Scholastic Magazine.

Summer Library Program Aims to Reach All Ages

A special program to interest all Pasadena area youths is being offered this summer by the Pasadena Public Libraries because librarians are convinced that "Summer time is a wonderful time to read."

The librarians have arranged their reading accomplishments this summer. Youths in the fourth grade or higher are invited to participate in the "Wonder Clock" booklet recording reading program. Each youth may record his reading for every hour around the clock in his booklet and punch a time card for his own record.

To carry out the idea, an Aztec calendar, an hourglass and cuckoo clock will be part of the summer display in the children's room.

Youths may also set their watches against a sun dial to be set up in the patio outside the youth reading room.

The traditional train club for younger children again will be part of the reading program. Each youth in the first through third grade will have his own engine which will progress around the track and into a round house as he reads books during the summer.

The story hours and film programs have been scheduled for the first six weeks of the summer at the central library and its branches. Folktales and fairy tales will be told in the style of the traditional story teller.

In addition there will be stories told in neighborhood backyards, according to Mrs. Betty L. Ryder, supervisor of work with children of the main library.

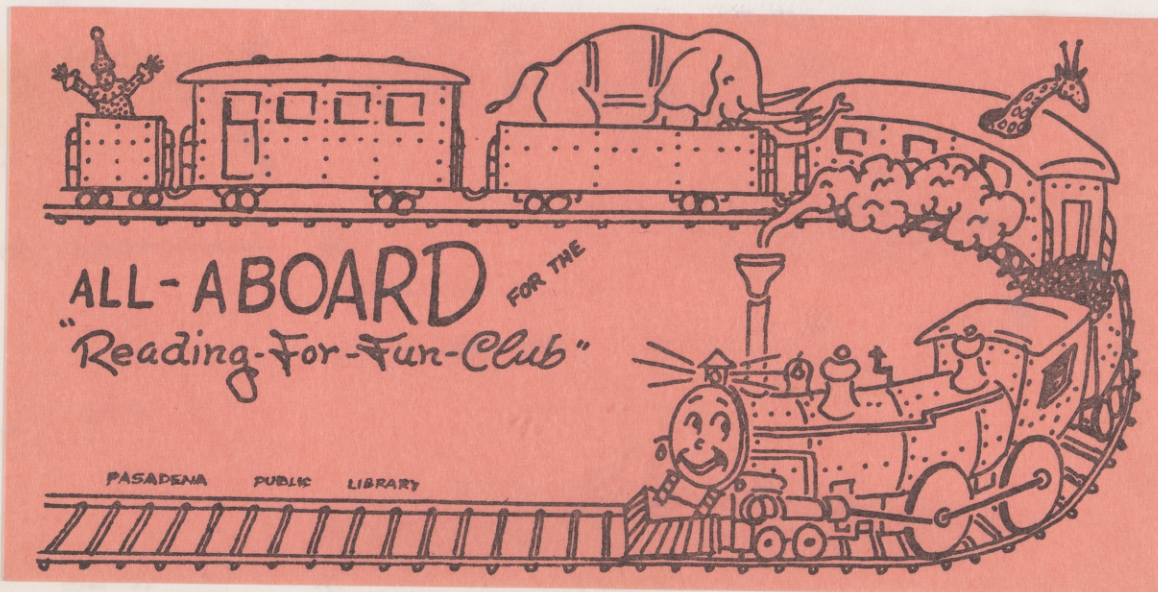

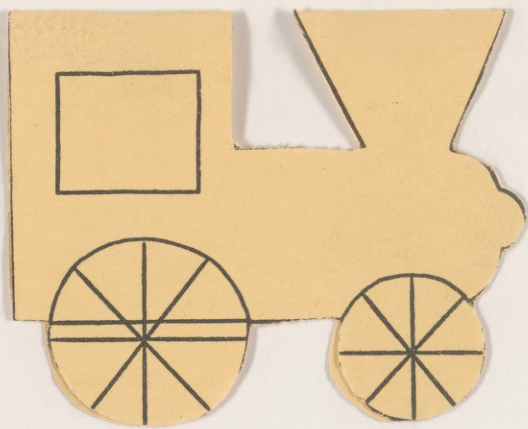

Mrs. Sally DeLancey will tell stories at 1 p.m. Tuesdays in Lani Guerrero's back yard at 494 Winona Ave., and at 2 p.m. in the back yard at the Mike Adam home, 380 S. Pasadena Ave.

And, in addition to all these services, youngsters who live beyond walking distance to the Central and Allendale libraries are invited to visit Garfield School this summer where they may borrow library books and also participate in the reading record program. A summer reading club also is planned for Garfield School at 3 p.m. Mondays.

A complete list of films to be shown and the dates and hours is available at all libraries.

Library Week Programs Slated

To celebrate National Library Week, April 16-22, the Pasadena Public Library has planned a host of activities. Sponsored by the National Book Committee in cooperation with the American Library Association, the week is devoted to the importance of libraries and the services which they offer.

To lead off the programs, Martha T. Boaz, dean of the library school at USC, will speak about her recent two-month lectureship in Saigon as a consultant to all university librarians in South Vietnam. She lectured on behalf of the Cultural Affairs Division of the U.S. State Department.

A tour of the "behind the scenes" aspects of library service will be given April 18 from 2-4 p.m. This involves a look at the acquisitions, mending, cataloging and other technical services that the public never sees.

Opening dates for new additions to the San Rafael and Hastings branches will also take place during National Library Week with appropriate neighborhood ceremonies.

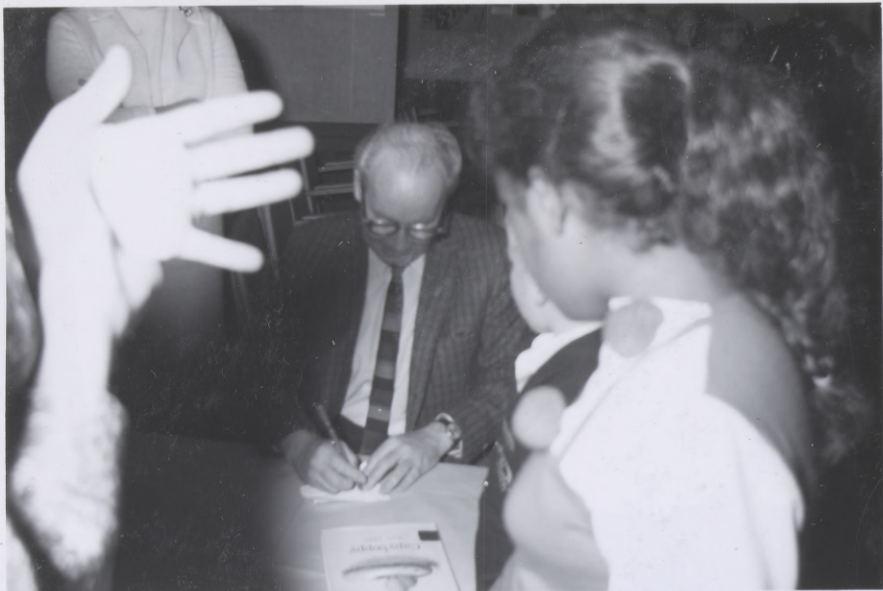

"An Afternoon with the Authors," April 21 at 3:30 p.m., is one of the children's programs offered at the central library. Seven writers will speak informally, telling how they write, and will also autograph their books.

Guest authors include Clyde Bulla, Eleanor Cameron (Mushroom Planet books), Don and Joan Caufield, Lorenz Graham, Kay Haugaard, Bill Peet and Mark Taylor.

A second program for children is a Japanese Doll Festival, April 22 at 10:30 a.m. in the central library. Japanese folk tales and stories will be told along with a display of Japanese dolls on loan from the Japanese Cultural Center in Pasadena. Boys will be particularly interested in the samurai doll. Children are invited to bring a doll of their own to the story hour.

These various activities are to encourage more people to utilize the services of the city's library. President Kennedy once said, "I hope very much that National Library Week will have widespread citizen participation and . . . serve to encourage all of us to improve libraries and to stimulate reading throughout the nation."
